    o the Restoration, 'Glorious Revolution' and power of Parliament

Session objectives:

The year is 1688 and Britain has been invaded by a foreign prince! How did this Dutch invasion come to be known as the Glorious Revolution? What led the British public to invite a foreigner to rule their country? How did James II's Catholic views lead to his desertion of the throne? Students will discover how William's arrival changed the face of British politics and the role of parliament for centuries, and why Hampton Court was remodelled to rival the French palace of Versailles.

During your session:

Please note that the 1:10 staff to pupil ratio which we ask for throughout your visit to Hampton Court Palace still applies during your teaching session. We ask that sufficient adults remain with the group as they will be encouraged to join in with the session activities. Our workshops are designed for a health and safety maximum of x35 pupils per session. As this is a route-based session, please ensure the group are aware to dress for the weather!
